

New police chief named

By BILL ZIERES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A Kansas City police captain was named Sedalia's second interim police chief by Mayor Jerry Jones, effective Friday morning.

Capt. James A. Reynolds, 35, an 11-year veteran of the Kansas City department, assumed his duties following a press conference at the Municipal Building.

Reynolds was chosen following the Wednesday resignation of interim police chief Gary Dey. Dey resigned for what he called "purely personal reasons," declining elaboration.

Reynolds stressed Friday morning that he did not anticipate any immediate changes within the Sedalia police department because he was not familiar with the department, its officers or the city of Sedalia.

Jones told newsmen that Reynolds came "highly regarded and recommended by Chief Joe McNamara, chief of the Kansas City police department."

Jones said that he went to Kansas City when looking for Dey's replacement because it is "important to achieve a more aggressive and professional police department and thus it was important to seek out a professional man." He said he chose Kansas City because of its proximity to Sedalia.

Jones said that he did not name Assistant Police Chief Charles Knapp Knapp as interim chief because Knapp "has duties and responsibilities as assistant chief and they must continue."

Reynolds said that he will serve as interim chief while on a leave of absence from the Kansas City department.

"I really don't expect to be permanent chief (in Sedalia)," he said Friday. "My intentions are to return to Kansas City."

Reynolds replaces Dey, who was named interim chief Dec. 19, after Jones fired Police Chief William Miller. A public hearing on Miller's dismissal is scheduled for Feb. 12 before the Police Personnel Board.

While Reynolds is working in Sedalia, Jones said that an agreement was worked out stating that Reynolds will be paid by Kansas City and Sedalia will then reimburse Kansas City. Jones explained that this was done so Reynolds would not lose any of his benefits from Kansas City, such as a retirement fund. Reynolds currently makes about $18,000 a year with Kansas City. That pay scale will remain the same while he is here.

Jones also said that Reynolds also will be paid for "reasonable expenses" he incurs while working here. Reynolds' wife and two sons will live in Kansas City while he is here.

Concerning the operation of the Sedalia police department, Reynolds said that he has no specific goals in mind except "to maintain the police services and improve what I can improve."

"I couldn't tell you what's going to happen in the future," Reynolds said. "Hopefully I might be able to leave some ideas here when I return to Kansas City."

Reynolds said that he has been briefed on the

Miller hearing set; salary hike proposed

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

At a meeting lasting six hours Thursday night, the Police Personnel Board set a date of 6:30 p.m. Feb. 12 for the public hearing on the dismissal of former Police Chief William Miller. The board also called for an across-the-board monthly salary increase of $100 for all members of the police force.

The board, in its third major action, recommended, for the first time in city history, that a female applicant fill one of three probationary patrolman vacancies currently existing.

Board Chairman Jim Rice said Friday the date for the Miller hearing, which will be held in the Municipal Building, was set after he had consulted with attorneys for both Miller and the city. He said he "certainly hopes" the hearing can be concluded in one session.

Miller requested such a hearing immediately after being fired by Mayor Jerry Jones Dec. 19 for alleged incompetence. The original hearing date of Jan. 14 was changed at the request of both Miller and the city.

A second hearing, this one for suspended patrolman Daryl Justis, will be held at 7 p.m. Feb. 17 in the council chambers, Rice said. Justis was suspended for 30 days last Saturday in connection with a disturbance earlier that morning at Sambo's Restaurant, 2100 South Limit.

The board Wednesday rejected the appeal of Patrolman William "Jack" Erwin, who was suspended for five days without pay Jan. 12 for allegedly sleeping on duty.

The board's decision to recommend a uniform wage hike for all officers of $100 per month came as a result of a study of police salaries offered by comparable cities in West-Central Missouri. Sedalia, Rice reported, ranked last among the five cities evaluated in the study. The present starting salaries for patrolmen in the cities studied are as follows: Columbia, $753; Jefferson City, $677; Marshall, $585; Warrensburg, $535; and Sedalia, $515.

The local police salary schedule has been of primary concern to the board, Rice explained, "because of the prime rate of attrition of local officers, most of whom quit specifically for salary-related reasons."

Noting that the proposed salary increase for the 40-man force would cost $48,000 per year, Rice said "if the citizens are as concerned as they appear to be and the council is as concerned as no doubt it is," the money could become available.

The overall aim of the board's suggestion, which Rice said will be made in writing to the City Council, is to "retain the good patrolmen and other grades of officers we have and to upgrade the quality of the force. Being a policeman in Sedalia

Police consider F.O.P. membership

A meeting of all Sedalia police officers interested in forming a local chapter of the Fraternal Order of Police (F.O.P.) is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday in the City Council chambers.

The purpose of the meeting is to allow the officers to discuss the F.O.P. and decide whether a local chapter should be formed. If the decision is favorable, a representative of the national F.O.P. will come to Sedalia Jan. 31 to swear them in.

The F.O.P. claims that it is not a union, but rather a group of police officers to help organize the efforts and goals of its members. It also offers associate memberships for businessmen to aid with community relations.

Sanford withdraws; list reduced to 10

By DAVE RILEY
Associated Press Writer

As President Ford considered at least five men as possible Republican running mates, the first of 11 announced Democratic contenders for his job was dropping out of the race.

An aide to Gov. Terry Sanford said today the former North Carolina governor had decided to quit. The aide said Sanford, during a dinner party at his home Thursday night in Durham, N.C., seemed resigned to the decision.

In Washington, Bill Broley, national coordinator for Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Jackson would enter the North Carolina primary March 23 as a result of Sanford's decision.

A spokesman for Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., said "we are giving serious consideration" to entering the North Carolina primary and would make an announcement next week.

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter announced plans to run in North Carolina well before any indication of a Sanford withdrawal.

Meanwhile in Sacramento, Calif., the secretary of state's office said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has declared that he does not want his name on California's June 8 presidential primary ballot.

A spokesman for the secretary of state said Kennedy wrote: "I am not and do not intend to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1976."

In a conversation with a group of New Hampshire newspaper editors, Ford said Thursday that among his possible choices for a running mate are Commerce Secretary Elliot L. Richardson and Sens. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts, Howard Baker and William Brock of Tennessee and Charles H. Percy of Illinois.

Ford also said there were "some excellent governors" such as Gov. Dan Evans of Washington, Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa and Gov. Christopher Bond of Missouri.

There were "many others" who could be considered, the President added.

Percy, told of Ford's statement, said he was "flattered," adding that "no one says 'no' to a president."

"It's nice to be on the list," said Baker. "but I'm not packing any bags." He said

"the time between now and Republican convention time in Kansas City is a political lifetime in this day and age."

Brooke said he was pleased to be on the list, but "I do not expect the President will ask me and I shall do nothing to encourage it."

There were these other political developments on Thursday:

—The Democratic National Committee filed a formal complaint with the Federal Election Commission on Thursday, objecting to Ford's appointment of Rogers C.B. Morton as a White House political aide.

The Democrats contended that because Morton's duties involve politics his salary should be charged to the Ford election campaign and should apply to Ford's campaign spending limit. Ford placed Morton on the White House payroll.

Holt, McMurdo file for city, county office

Stanley Holt, 61, 1701 East Fifth, Friday morning became the second Democrat to file as a candidate for Second Ward council seat.

A retired employee of Beatrice Foods in Sedalia, Holt presently drives a school bus. He will be opposed in the Democratic primary by Ray Hatfield, 49, 1503 East Fourth. The incumbent Second Ward councilman, Democrat Ira Knox, has not yet filed for re-election.

Holt was not available for comment.

On the county level, J. A. "Jack" McMurdo, 54, 2313 East 16th, became the first Democrat to file for the office of Pettis County assessor.

McMurdo, a salesman for Country View Mobile Homes in Sedalia, formerly managed the Pettis County state motor vehicle registration office.

McMurdo, a native Sedalian, said he filed for office "because I have always been interested in city and county government ... and I also have always enjoyed working with people. I feel I have the necessary ambition and dedication it will take to succeed in this position."

Incumbent county assessor Bill McCune has not yet indicated whether he plans to run for re-election.

Siragusa in favor of festival

Jake Siragusa, the newly-named executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, Friday said a third local ragtime music festival "should definitely be held" this summer "because if it isn't, we may very well lose the continuity of the thing."

Also, Siragusa said, "the national publicity that Sedalia received from the festivals was something that could never have been bought. It was just about the greatest promotional item Sedalia has ever had."

The festival itself, he added, "involved entertainers who were very, very good, the highest caliber you can get."

Siragusa was active in promoting the first two festivals. He is also a musician, having played in dance bands, and currently performs with the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra.

Asked if he would assume a direct role in helping stage a third festival, as did his predecessor Larry Melton, Siragusa said, "I, of course, would be as active as possible, but I don't think I'll have quite the latitude Larry had. After all, he was the godfather of the original festival, if you will. He started from scratch and made it go."

"Of course," Siragusa added, "I will be working under the wishes of the Chamber and that will determine my official action in this area."

At its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, the Chamber board of directors approved giving the Ragtime Festival Committee $500. The committee earlier stated that a debt of more than $1,000 had been incurred from last summer's festival. The group last week delayed voting on whether to hold a third festival, but is expected to make a final decision soon.

U. S., Soviets could sign weapons treaty as early as May

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended talks with Soviet leaders today and flew here to tell North Atlantic leaders that the Soviets have put forward "some significant and constructive new ideas" for a nuclear weapons treaty.

The package deal taking shape would reduce by about 10 per cent the strategic bombers and missiles allowed to either side. It would also provide a compromise on the two principal difficulties — Soviet Backfire bombers and American cruise missiles.

U.S. officials said that, while "a hell of a lot of work remains to be done," if all goes smoothly Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev could be in Washington as early as May to sign the new treaty with President Ford.

Kissinger evidently was much less successful in his Kremlin talks on Angola. He reminded Brezhnev that Soviet support for a Marxist faction in the African civil war was undercutting detente in the eyes of the American people. But Kissinger made no apparent headway.

The secretary of state said that a report by newsmen John Scali, former U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, that Kissinger might resign because he couldn't persuade the Soviets to end their support of the Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola was "ridiculous."

Despite the absence of a breakthrough in nuclear weapons negotiations, Kissinger and his top aides laid claim to "significant progress." Reporters were told at least two issues were essentially resolved — the definition of light and heavy missiles and how to deal with American cruise missiles launched from the air.

In Moscow, Gromyko also told reporters there was "movement forward on several matters."

At the airport before leaving Moscow, Kissinger said, "We settled some important issues which will be passed on to

(the nuclear treaty negotiators at Geneva). We made good progress on other issues."

Specific measurements of both the size and the force of missiles will be established by agreement in order to avoid charges of treaty violations. U.S. officials acknowledged that a unilateral American definition under the 1972 interim agreement was ambiguous.

Bombers carrying long-range cruise missiles would count against the over-all U.S. total but short-range cruise missiles would not count.

Other issues that stand in the way of completing a treaty remain unresolved.

"Another round or two" of talks between Kissinger and Brezhnev in Moscow may be necessary, a senior U.S. official said.

Under a 1974 understanding between Ford and Brezhnev, the two superpowers were to be limited to 2,400 strategic delivery vehicles each. For the past 14 months negotiations have stalled on how, or whether, to count the Soviet Backfire bombers and American cruise missiles against these totals.

The compromise now forming would lower the ceiling to about 2,150 while the Soviets would be permitted to have some 250 Backfires in addition to that total, provided they would not station them within striking distance of American population centers.

Kissinger said he did not want set a target date for reaching another arms control agreement. But he said, "I believe that conditions exist to move toward an agreement."

Asked if he would be returning to Moscow for more negotiations, he said, "That is not excluded but has not been decided yet. It depends on what we propose and what the Soviet reply will be, whether it will be necessary to negotiate personally."

Parallels among Angolan leaders

NEW YORK (AP) — All three leaders of the three factions fighting for governing power in Angola have strong religious backgrounds and continuing ties to Christianity.

Their parallel upbringing and somewhat similar socialistic goals are among the oddly concordant — yet confusing — aspects of the Angola war cited by veteran mission workers familiar with the situation there.

It resulted in church humanitarian aid going to all three independence groups until stopped last year when war among them broke out.

"All of the three rival leaders grew up in very devoted Christian families and are very knowledgeable about the Christian faith," says the Rev. Lawrence Henderson, a mission worker in Angola for 22 years.

"They'd be able to out-preach most preachers in New York."

Angola itself is about 60 per cent Christian, the rest mostly followers of traditional African religions. Of its six million people, about three million are Roman Catholics, about one million Protestants.

The three opposing leaders, who for more than a decade were jointly involved in the struggle against Portugal until independence was granted last summer, are all Protestants, educated in Protestant mission schools.

"Protestants over the years have put more effort into educational work than Catholics, so there is more leadership influence in Protestantism," says the Rev. Mr. Henderson, now a missions executive of the United Church of Christ.

Catholicism also had ties with the Portuguese colonial regime and was officially favored before independence.

The Rev. Mr. Henderson, in an interview, and other sources provided this background about the three independence leaders:

Holden Roberto, 53, head of the National Front for the Liberation of Angola — FNLA —

Baptist minister and reared in a devout Baptist family, he was baptized in youth, and attended schools run by British Baptists, the oldest Protestant mission group in Angola, there in 1878.

Roberto for a time served as an instructor in a Baptist school in Salvador, Angola, and still finds time between military engagements for frequent participation in worship services.

Agostinho Neto, 52, head of the Popular Movement for Liberation of Angola — MPLA — backed by the Soviet Union and Cuba, is a Methodist son of a Methodist minister, a product of Methodist mission schools.

He studied medicine on a Methodist scholarship in Portugal, and later served as secretary to Angola's Methodist bishop. The present Angolan Methodist bishop, Emilio de Carvalho, reportedly supports him firmly.

However, the Rev. Mr. Henderson said while Neto expresses appreciation for the church's "contributions in values and support for the people," his attitude toward the church "seems mainly sentimental, a carry-over from youth, rather than active participation."

Also, his organization's literature is openly Marxist, disparaging religion.

Jonas M. Savimbi, 41, head of the National Union for Total Independence of Angola — UNITA — backed by South Africa, China and the United States, is a member of the United Church of Christ, trained in mission schools, still an active churchman.

On church scholarships, he studied medicine in Lisbon and earned a doctorate in political science in Lausanne, Switzerland. His father, a railway worker and church lay leader with an evangelical zeal, helped found scores of churches and schools in Angola.

Savimbi "has been very close to church work," said the Rev. Mr. Henderson, adding: "All three men had a very complete immersion in the Christian community, because of its intensive, inclusive nature there, involving whole families and the whole of life — schools, health, agriculture."

Abortion fight front widening

NEW YORK (AP) — A widened front is showing up in the fight against abortion. At the same time, questions are being raised about the all-out effort mounted by the Roman Catholic bishops to mobilize opposition in every diocese in the nation.

Catholic editorialists have speculated that this could unintentionally lead to a national Catholic political party. But church officials dispute it.

Meanwhile, the inter-religious aspect of the opposition, involving Eastern Orthodox and various Jewish and Protestant elements, as well as Catholicism, was evident this week in affairs marking the third anniversary of the Jan. 22, 1973 Supreme Court decision permitting abortion.

Differences over it have smoldered ever since as abortions multiply, with the legality of it supported by many Protestants, Jews and some Catholics, but strongly opposed by others, also of varying creed.

Cross-denominational opposition groups have spread across the country, both locally and in national groups, mostly led by Protestants, such as:

"National Right to Life Committee," "American Citizens Concerned for Life, Inc.," "Values of Life Committee," "Christian Action Council" and "Baptists for Life."

Such groups held demonstrations in many communities this week, such as a "day of mourning" sponsored in Boston by an ecumenical organization called "Massachusetts Citizens for Life."

Leaders of several of the opposition groups were involved in a march and ecumenical "prayer breakfast" in Washington, D.C., including Ruth Graham, a Presbyterian wife of Baptist evangelist Billy Graham.

Also taking part were representatives of orthodox Judaism, the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, Roman Catholicism and the Orthodox Church in America.

A pastoral letter distributed for the week by a Catholic bishops' committee says: "Laws that permit the arbitrary destruction of human life — before as well as after birth — are unjust and immoral."

Also the U.S. Catholic bishops, in a friend-of-court brief filed in the U.S. Supreme Court in a case involving the Missouri abortion law, asked that legal personhood be extended to the unborn human fetus.

But the main effort of the Catholic bishops, authorized at their annual meeting last November, was their commitment to generate a massive drive to outlaw abortion throughout the church's dioceses and parishes.

An independent church weekly, the National Catholic Reporter, says the effort could unleash "a fearsome thing" — the creation of a national Catholic political party — even though unintended.

However, Msgr. James T. McHugh, director of pro-life activities for the U.S. Catholic Conference, says the church won't and can't "carry on politics" but it can escalate the "visibility of abortion" regardless of politics or denomination. He adds:

"It is the central issue of our times."

Guest Laity speaker

The First Christian Church, 200 South Limit, will observe Laity Sunday during the 10:10 a.m. Sunday service. Laity Sunday is an opportunity for the church to emphasize the responsibility of the lay person for the worldwide ministry and mission of the church.

Mrs. Wilma J. Bibble, wife of Dr. William T. Gibble, president of the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), will be the guest speaker.

"A Christian Presence Beyond Ourselves," will be the topic of her sermon, which will be broadcast at 11:30 a.m. by radio station KDRO.

Mrs. Gibble graduated from Phillips University, Enid, Okla., with a degree in religious education and is active in state and local work of the Christian Church. She is a member of the Christian Women's Fellowship state board and the Board of the Christian Church in Missouri.

Immanuel Church plans anniversary activities

Immanuel United Church of Christ, Fourth and Vermont, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year with a Bicentennial year project.

Don Barbour, president of the congregation, will officially begin the church's centennial celebrations during the worship service Sunday morning by presenting the congregation's Bicentennial year project to Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones.

Over $30,000 has been spent during the past two years to preserve the 80-year-old structure now housing the congregation's worship services.

Mayor Jones will receive the project on behalf of the city and the Bicentennial Commission.

Besides preserving something of the past, the church calls attention to the contributions of religion to our national heritage and focuses on the freedom which religion has enjoyed in our nation.

Miss Hazel Gray, a life-long member of Immanuel Church and a retired teacher from the Sedalia public school system, will deliver the message Sunday morning, assisted by the Pastor, Marvin Albright.

Special centennial programs will be held and former ministers and guests will be honored on the last Sunday of each month throughout the next 10 months. These activities will culminate on Oct. 24 with a march from the original church site at Main and Washington to the present location at Fourth and Vermont.

Immanuel Church is proud of its rich heritage and the contributions its members have made in the leadership of our community and the preservation of a building with historical significance.

Counterfeiting ring uncovered in Missouri

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A counterfeiting operation conducted in three states has been halted with the arrest of two men and the seizure of more than $32,000 in bogus $10 and $20 bills, the Secret Service said.

Charged with possession of counterfeit money were Carl Gene Spurlock, 46, of Knobelsville, Ark., and Floyd Russell Warnick, 50, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., agents said Thursday. The two were being held in lieu of $25,000 bond each.

The bogus bills, apparently made from the same engraving plates, had been found in Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee, agents said, adding that similar counterfeit bills were first found in the St. Louis area Jan. 7.

Authorities said two undercover agents negotiated Wednesday to buy $15,000 in counterfeit money from Warnick in the Poplar Bluff motel where he lives.

After the two men were arrested, agents said they seized more than $12,000 printed on large sheets of paper ready to be cut to size as well as bills torn in half which had manufacturing defects.

"For there is one God, and one mediator between God and man, the man Christ Jesus." — I Timothy 2:5.

We should realize that Jesus was more than a man; He was God in the flesh. By His death on the cross, salvation and forgiveness of sins have been made available to all.

The mediatorial ministry of Christ is sufficient for all. His death and resurrection mean that men can be saved through faith. To add or subtract anything is contrary to sound Biblical doctrine. This includes the addition of mass, Holy Communion, baptism, good works, and other trappings which are unnecessary.

Coexistence or calamity in the Mideast?

WASHINGTON — At the risk of whatever, I am writing another column about Israel, the Arabs, the Palestine Liberation Organization and the Middle East.

Rowan

Why do I invite all the name-calling, the bitter attacks, that follow every article on this subject? Because I know that while the killing in Beirut is devastating, and the mayhem in Northern Ireland may seem the grossest of sacrileges, the conflict in the Middle East is the one most likely to drag mankind into a nuclear holocaust.

If you have read the Old Testament, as I have over and over, you know what the hills and valleys and rivers of the Middle East mean to Jews.

If you could spend a session as a delegate to the UN General Assembly, as I have, you would sense the intense emotion that the Palestinians bring to their claim to a homeland in the very same areas.

We Americans are hostages, of a sort, to the passions of Jews everywhere and angry Palestinians who seem to pop up everywhere. But it is time for the great mass of us to stop being hostages and demand a solution in the Middle East that does not invite the destruction of all mankind.

My ideas regarding such a solution guarantee something about which I have never wavered: the survival of Israel as a state and a homeland for those who wish to claim it.

I know. It provokes some Arabs and others to scream "racism" that Jews should want a Jewish state. So they pass insipid resolutions declaring that Zionism is racism.

As an outside observer, I understand the emotions behind this. The Palestinians want a "homeland," too. If they had one and the world's Jews were still out in the cold, some Jews would be saying Palestinianism is "racism."

But, glandular reactions aside, there are some stark realities about the Middle East no sane observer can ignore.

The first truth, now accepted by Egypt's president Anwar Sadat, is that Israel is here to stay: Israel would go up in the smoke of a thousand atomic bombs before voluntarily vanishing from the maps of the world. Sadat suspects that, given that tragic turn of events, the bombs would engulf the Arab world much sooner than they would annihilate Israel.

There is absolutely no hope of avoiding gross warfare in the Middle East unless the Arab powers and their friends accept this reality.

At the same time, the Israelis (and more importantly, Israel's most vocal supporters among U. S. Jews) must face the political truth that bit by bit Israel is being isolated to the point where only the United States remains a full-fledged supporter. And even segments of the U. S. population now support Israel with sharply diminished ardor.

The current debates in the UN Security Council attest to the growing isolation of Israel. Even the sincerest non-Jewish friend and supporter of Israel is opposed to Israel establishing new settlements on the Golan Heights as though this and other captured territories are to be part of Israel forever.

It isn't written in tablets of stone, but UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim spoke a gospel truth of our time when he said that the aspirations and dreams of the Palestinians are going to have to be considered.

I know. Talk of giving the Palestinians a "homeland" on the West Bank and/or the Gaza Strip is viewed by many Jews as conceding the destruction of Israel. After all, have not leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization talked of turning the whole area into one secular state in which Jews, Christians, Moslems would have to live together?

Still, in our lifetimes, perhaps, we shall see a Jewish state and a Palestinian country co-existing side by side, each knowing that is the alternative to calamity.

My own conversations with Yasser Arafat of the PLO and other PLO leaders convinces me that they know they cannot push Israel into the sea. I cannot say they have fastened their hearts to the idea that there will always be an Israel. But they may have embraced the reality that it could take a thousand years of a Palestinian state existing beside a Jewish state before there is any chance of creating that single "secular" state.

Israel needs supporters other than the United States, no matter how militarily powerful Uncle Sam may be. The rest of the world is going to insist that Israel face up to the question of Palestinian rights.

Add this to a general Arab acceptance of what Sadat learned long ago — that the route of sanity is the acceptance of Israel — and you have a formula for peace.

A flimsy formula, yes, but much less dangerous than another Middle East war.

'Equal time' for KGB

After the rash of naming persons in various countries as CIA agents, two Soviet diplomats in Paris have been labeled as spies for the Soviet Union. This is not exactly equal time for the KGB, but it is a small reminder that the CIA has someone to counterspy against. Indeed, a French magazine reports that in Paris Soviet agents outnumber American agents by 10 to one.

It's all a kind of footnote to the irony that the CIA gets all the bad press, while the far larger worldwide Soviet espionage apparatus is too often left in the background where every spy would like to stay. But it's a valuable footnote if it helps spur the United States toward swift administrative and legislative action to ensure the integrity and safeguard the intelligence and counterintelligence operations of the CIA.

As it is, reports from both the U.S. and abroad suggest a plummeting of morale among CIA personnel and a heightening of the difficulty in establishing "covers" and maintaining foreign contacts.

It could hardly be otherwise in view of the disclosures about CIA wrongdoing. Yet the situation should not be allowed to continue. In an imperfect world, the CIA's role is too important.

It must be helped to tread the precarious line of meeting an adversary's tactics within the limits of conduct acceptable in the name of the American people. Its ability to collect the intelligence vital to national security must be preserved.

Sometimes unfortunately forgotten is the value of CIA information as a nonpartisan input to foreign policy deliberations. It is said, for example, that CIA information on Vietnam was often more realistic than the information acted on or distorted by the administration. In recent weeks the CIA reportedly has come up with information challenging Israel's estimates of aid needed from the U.S.

The CIA's will and capacity to provide information the administration may or may not want to hear must be fostered. For this reason—and to prevent misuse by any administration—CIA independence under careful controls must be maintained... (Christian Science Monitor)

WASHINGTON — Energy czar Frank Zorn would have followed Labor Secretary John Dunlop out of the government if President Ford had vetoed the energy bill as he did the common situs labor bill.

Sources close to Zorn say he was ready to resign, effective in April, if he had been hit with a veto. For the doughty little ex-broker had spent months hammering out a bill which sets a new national oil policy.

Zorn worked 16-hour days to patch together a compromise. Even when his duties took him out of town, he set up extra phones in his hotel rooms and kept burning the wires to Capitol Hill.

The compromise bill satisfied no one, least of all the oil companies, but it was the best that could clear Congress. The oil barons made a final, powerful effort to pressure President Ford into vetoing the bill.

The showdown came on Nov. 13 behind closed White House doors. The President called in top congressional Republicans to hear Zorn present his arguments against a veto.

Merry-go-round

Zorn staked his all on energy measure

He and his deputies, John Hill and Eric Zausner, ran into a hailstorm of opposition from Conservative Republicans, some of them primed with arguments by the oil companies.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, made a vitriolic personal attack upon Hill, charging that he had undercut conservative Republican leaders on oil policy. More politely, Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., made the same point.

The President, who had backed Zorn, was shaken by the opposition. By the end of the two-hour meeting, the conservatives were convinced the measure would be vetoed.

But the indefatigable Zorn didn't give up. He inveigled a ride on Air Force One for the first lap of the President's trip to China. All the way to Alaska, Zorn lobbied the President.

After Ford's return, Zorn kept it up until the President signed the bill on Dec. 22.

Footnote: Zorn's closest friends confirmed that a veto would have brought his resignation. Zorn himself would tell us only: "The battle is over, I don't want to talk about it."

BRIBE PROBE: San Francisco U.S. Attorney James Browning will take time off from the Patty Hearst case later this month to probe a $50,000 bribe reportedly offered by Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos to a congressional witness.

Browning began his grand jury investigation after ex-Marcos aide Primitivo Mijares gave us documentary evidence that a secret $50,000 bank account was opened for him by a Philippine diplomat.

Mijares has sworn the bank account was ordered opened by Marcos to keep him from testifying on Capitol Hill against the Marcos regime. The account was abruptly closed when he testified anyway. Marcos denies the bribe charge.

Save the old Georgetown school

Last week at the Sedalia school board meeting the matter of auctioning three country school houses was discussed. It drew little public attention... and rightly so, as selling the schools would have an affect on relatively few people. But, being one of those few, I'd like to address myself to the situation of selling one of those buildings in particular — the Georgetown school.

One of the main reasons cited for auctioning the schools is that they are becoming too much of a responsibility to look after. I know nothing about the other two schools, but the Georgetown school can hardly be looked upon as a liability. Next to the Georgetown church, it is the most valuable asset of the community. Never has any trouble been reported at the school, as I understand is the case with at least one of the others.

At the meeting, Dr. Henningsen raised the question of who would repair the building if something should happen to it. This would be easily taken care of by the insurance carried by the Georgetown Community Club on the building.

Another reason given for selling the Georgetown school is to raise a little extra revenue. When considering how little revenue would be raised, the futility of the argument can be seen. Why would any individual want to buy it? To convert it into a home, as has been the case with other old school buildings? Convention Hall could be more easily adapted.

The Georgetown school currently serves the community in a number of ways. It is the home of the Georgetown Community Club and is the meeting place of various youth groups. It is also used as the polling place for Cedar Township.

The school is also of historical importance. Built well before the turn of the century, children for three generations attended the school, among them, Sarah Cotton. Many Georgetown and area residents hold fond memories of their days at the school, which sits next to where the Pettis County Courthouse once stood. It would hardly be in the bicentennial spirit to allow such an area landmark to fall into the hands of a private concern through a public auction.

Letters from a computer

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Everyone likes to get letters. But the letters I like best are those that are written by computers.

This may sound strange to you, but actually computers are becoming very warm and friendly creatures. They know the importance of the personal touch.

It used to be that the typical computer letter only mentioned your name in the heading. But now they have models that insert your first name throughout the body of the letter. It kind of makes you feel that you're something more than merely No. K33718499Z.

There has been another innovation I've noticed recently—the computerized underline. This is done with ink and is even wobbly and uneven, just like the real thing. I got a pitch from an insurance company the other day in which every other word was underlined in this manner.

If the name of the game is getting back to the personal approach, I have a few suggestions of my own for writing business letters.

One would be to occasionally insert a smudged thumb print in the margin. I do this with my own letters quite regularly and have had nothing but good comments.

You could always spill a few gravy stains across the page. It would seem a simple enough job to program the computer to squirt a drop here and there.

Then there is nothing like a few misspellings to tell your reader that you're just plain folks. For example, I have consistently written "seperate" just to let others know that I'm doing my own work.

With the new typewriters, erasures and corrections are now all but undetectable. This is a mistake. If you are trying to get away from the computer-written image it is best to sprinkle in several smudged erasures as well as a couple of strikeouts.

When it comes to stationery and envelopes, most big companies strive for impeccable design and quality. This is too pretentious for today's casual lifestyles. I would suggest a tablet of cheap writing paper, preferably with pictures of large-eyed kittens on it.

You could even add a few drops of dime store perfume in the envelope for good measure.

A Sedalia college student has received nationwide publicity for his striking weight-loss story.

Henry Harris, 19, a sophomore at State Fair Community College, was selected as the "Slimmer of the Month" by the National Enquirer, the nation's largest circulation weekly newspaper, in its Jan. 27 issue. As such, he qualified for $150 from the Enquirer.

The story relates how Henry, who at 253 pounds was known as the "human garbage pail," trimmed down to 140 pounds in a year by sticking ruthlessly to a 500-to-700-calories-a-day diet. His motivation was simple—girls. Now they go out with him, he relates.

Henry is the son of Mrs. Ada L. Harris, 1309 East Boonville.

Bond honored to be on list as VP possible

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond says he's "honored to be included" among the eight potential vice presidential candidates mentioned by President Ford.

"But if Jimmy the Greek were in this, he give me less than 100-1 odds because of the others on the list," Bond said today.

The Republican governor said he had not spoken with the President about any possible selection of a vice presidential candidate.

"The last time we were together, we talked about agriculture, foreign affairs and skiing," Bond said during a news conference.

Bond said he would probably continue "doing what I'm doing now," but he would not definitely rule out the possibility of running for vice president if selected. He said that he doubted he would be selected.

"Eight is a large number. I don't know that I will survive the next squad cut," he said.

Bond said he believed the vice presidential candidate would not be selected before the Kansas City-hosted Republican National Convention in August. He said that the fact that he could still be among those considered when the deadline comes for filing for re-election as governor "could cause some difficulties."

Bond said that it was probable that he would seek re-election to another four-year term, but that he did not know what his response would be if asked to run for vice president.

"I don't think you can campaign for vice president," he said.

Beirut airport reopened

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut International Airport reopened today for the first time in a week and the first jet to land brought a team of Syrian army officers to help monitor Lebanon's cease-fire.

Occasional rocket, mortar and machine gun fire marred the truce during the night, but an army spokesman reported a 75 per cent de-escalation on all battle fronts today.

More than 9,000 persons have been killed in nine months of fighting, and one economic expert estimated war losses at $8 billion, the equivalent of Lebanon's national income for three years.

The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome said emergency food supplies are being sent to Lebanon to aid 350,000 persons most seriously affected by the fighting.

As the fighting tapered off, hundreds of armed hooligans broke into shops and homes in Beirut and stole more than $2 million worth of goods, officials estimated.

Official spokesman said the Syrian government, the author of the military-political peace plan which all the warring factions accepted Thursday, assured President Suleiman Franjeh that the Palestinian guerrillas who crossed into Lebanon from Syria to help the leftist Moslem Lebanese against the right-wing Christian fighters would be withdrawn soon.

Officials estimated that there were about 2,000 Palestinians to be withdrawn.

"Syria also pledged to crack down ruthlessly on any attempt to undermine the cease-fire or the new national charter that is to regulate peaceful coexistence between Moslems and Christians," one informed official reported.

"The Syrians mean business. They want the war over once and for all and are prepared to go to any extremes to see that no one, including the guerrillas, dissents."

But so many previous cease-fires ended in a resumption of fighting that foreign observers had their doubts about this one. The chairman of Al Ahram, the semi-official Cairo newspaper, predicted that the truce would not hold for long.

Other Cairo papers said the Moslems and Christians would use the cease-fire to bury their dead and rearm.

A spokesman for the U.S. State Department in Washington said his government would be encouraged if the peace plan succeeded.

The agreement negotiated by a three-man Syrian delegation headed by Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam calls for the return of all persons to the homes and properties they had before the civil war started in April, the retreat of all fighting forces to their camps and bases, a new constitution reducing the dominant power of the Christian minority and increasing that of the Moslem majority to equalize them and machinery to improve the economic lot of the Moslems.

The Syrian delegation scheduled a series of meetings with Lebanese government and army leaders today to work out measures to consolidate the cease-fire. An army spokesman said these measures would be announced gradually by the six-man supreme military committee which is to supervise the enforcement of the truce agreement.

Cuba exporting workers to expand its influence

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 2,000 Cubans are working in about a dozen poor countries far from Cuba's borders as part of a plan to expand Cuban influence in the Third World, U.S. officials report.

The Cubans are scattered across two continents, building schools and hospitals and offering technical assistance and political advice.

In contrast to well-publicized Cuban military involvement in Angola, these Cubans work almost unnoticed by the rest of the world in such countries as Guinea, the Congo, Somalia, Tanzania, Guinea-Bissau, Sierra Leone, Equatorial Guinea, Algeria, South Yemen and Vietnam.

Officials here have no estimate on how many of these Cubans are military personnel, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger recently suggested the figure is high. Discussing Cuban armed forces at a news conference, he said, "They seem to be everywhere but Cuba."

Prime Minister Fidel Castro last month acknowledged that Cuban military involvement has not been limited to Angola. He told the Cuban Communist Party Congress that the Cuban army had "shed blood more than once in other countries threatened by imperialist aggression."

Intelligence budgets "are almost surely better known to our adversaries than to us," Bundy said in a prepared statement. He said the current atmosphere makes it impossible for large operations like Angola to "remain unattributed or unadmitted for any significant length of time."

Bundy, who served under President Kennedy, also said it is wrong to attribute the revelation of the Angolan operation to the proliferation of congressional committees with access to CIA secrets.

"It's real cause is much deeper," Bundy said. "It is the breakdown of the broad political consensus which made it possible 10 or 15 years ago for the CIA to conduct such large operations in the face of widespread knowledge of their existence without any admission or explanation from the U.S. government."

"I believe it is essential to repeal that procedure and replace it by another which will include provisions for adequate secrecy," Colby said in prepared testimony.

Former national security adviser McGeorge Bundy told the committee it no longer is necessary for the CIA to keep such secrets as the over-all size of its budget and the existence of such large-scale operations as the recent military assistance to anti-Communist factions in Angola.

Attended arson is listed as the cause of a minor fire at Bunnie's Barbeque, 204 South Engineer, at 8:37 p.m. Thursday.

According to a spokesman for the Sedalia Fire Department, someone splashed gasoline on the back door of the building's northside and ignited it. Damage was estimated at $75 to the door and siding.

Loss set at $139

Rex Real, a salesman at Bill Greer Motors, 1700 West Broadway, reported the theft, between Jan. 10 and Jan. 12, of four wire wheel covers, valued at $139. The wheel covers were taken from a 1976 car parked in front of the building.

A tricycle, valued at $25, was reported taken from a garage at 1816 South Ohio Tuesday night, police reported Thursday.

problems within the Sedalia department but did not know enough about them Friday to have any plans in mind.

He said that he took the job as interim chief because it would be good experience for him and he thought he could handle the position.

"I hope I can be of service to the people of Sedalia and help myself," he said.

Third Ward Democratic Councilman Carl Franklin, chairman of the council's police committee, disagreed with Jones' action. He said he felt a local officer, such as Assistant Chief Charles Knapp, should have been named to succeed Dey.

"I say this because there's not going to be that much time that this new man will be chief," he said. "For no longer than this man will serve, I think we could have gone ahead and appointed a local man to take over." He also said he favored raising the present pay level for police officers and other city employees.

Concerning Sedalia's drug problem, Reynolds said he has had "limited experience" in drug enforcement, "... it isn't my strength."

Reynolds worked his way up through the ranks in the Kansas City police department in his 11 years. He served as an administrative assistant to McNamara during his first year as chief and for seven months under FBI Director Clarence Kelley while he was still police chief.

Reynolds holds a bachelor's degree in law enforcement from Central Missouri State University, as well as a master's degree in business administration from CMSU.

Would-be rapist fails to hang himself today

CHICAGO (AP) — A 21-year-old Chicago man accused of trying to rape a school teacher in front of her first-grade class tried to hang himself early today in a police jail cell, officers said.

The suspect, Carl Roy Thurmond, was revived with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and put under constant surveillance, police said.

Officers said Thurmond was found on the floor during a routine check of the cell block. He had his sweater tied around his neck and it appeared, a policeman said, that he had tied the sweater to the cell bars and the knot slipped.

Thurmond was arrested when he entered the police station Thursday night to complain that officers were circulating pictures of him near his home.

Police said the composite picture of the teacher's alleged assailant were shown in Thurmond's neighborhood after an anonymous caller said the attacker lived there.

Thurmond later was identified in a police lineup by the teacher and a student, authorities said.

Police said the 41-year-old teacher managed to fend off the attacker Wednesday but that he forced her to undress in front of her class at gunpoint and took $16 from her.

Thurmond was charged with attempted rape, armed robbery, burglary, armed violence, deviate sexual assault and unlawful restraint, police said.

Center Tournament

Tigers hang on for 48-47 win over K.C. Southeast

KANSAS CITY — Some strong free throw shooting by Smith-Cotton pulled the Tigers into the consolation finals of the Kansas City Center Basketball Tournament here Thursday night.

The Tigers, who canned 12 of 16 free throws for the game, pulled out a 48-47 victory over Kansas City Southeast and will take on Kansas City Paseo this evening at 5:30 p.m.

Paseo moved into the consolation game with a 55-48 win over William Chrisman. Although the Tigers were outscored in total field goals (19-18), S-C's shooting eye from the charity stripe was deadly.

Even more deadly was the play of Pat Fiene, who poured in 29 points for game-high honors. Fiene, who earlier this season scored 42 points, tossed in five of the Tigers' 12 free throws.

The game was close all the way, although the Tigers managed to hold slim margins at the end of every quarter.

"We played pretty well defensively and rebounded well," said Dave Porter, the Tigers' second-year head coach.

"Offensively, we had a number of good shots, but they wouldn't fall," Porter added. "I thought we handed the ball pretty well against their press."

Porter praised the play of reserve guard Jim Schroeder, who came off the bench, did a good job against the press and triggered a couple of fast breaks "that really helped," Porter concluded.

Back-up senior forward Joe Fischer suffered a cut over his eye, which required seven stitches. Fischer was subbing for Pete Fiene, who picked up three fouls in the first half.

The tournament concludes tonight. Following the Tigers' consolation game with Paseo, Shawnee Mission East, the team that dropped the Tigers into the losers' bracket handing them a 61-46 setback in the first round of play, will meet Ruskin at 7:30 p.m. for third place.

Talented and undefeated Center, the host school, faces Shawnee Mission South in the 9 p.m. championship game.

State Fair front line fuels 67-66 loop win

By VAUGHN HART
Sports Editor

There was a cigarette commercial that was being used a few years ago that said, "It's what's up front that counts."

Things couldn't be anymore true for State Fair Community College Thursday night in a tight, 67-66 victory over Trenton (Mo.) Junior College in Greater Kansas City Community College Conference play.

The Roadrunners' front-line trio of Ray Steele, Charles Johnson and Lyonel Hardin lit the spark for State Fair in the second half and pulled SFCC to its third GK4C victory in four games.

Trailing at the half, 34-30, Steele and Johnson in particular took command and started moving the ball inside against Trenton's powerful front wall, which is anchored by 6-9 sophomore center Russell Bland.

Hardin kept the Roadrunners in the game in the first half, scoring 14 of his 15 points. Johnson, SFCC's all-regional forward who is averaging nearly 23 points per game, was held scoreless in the first half, but broke loose in the second period for 17 points. Steele, who like Hardin and Johnson is a sophomore, really got the Roadrunners going with some key rebounding.

Steele, Denver, Colo., scored 19 points to pace State Fair's offensive attack.

All told, Hardin, Johnson and Steele accounted for 51 of the Roadrunners' 67 points in the contest, which saw SFCC extend its glittering record to 15-2.

Trenton entered the game with a 5-0 mark in conference play and stood 13-3 overall. One of the Pirates' three previous losses was at the hands of State Fair in the finals of the Hutchinson, Kan., Blue Dragon Classic earlier this month.

State Fair coach Bill Barton said before the game that he expected to have trouble with the Pirates' 6-9 center Bland. He was right.

Bland wound up with 35 points for game honors. But even more impressive were his 17 rebounds which helped the Pirates to a 43-32 advantage in that department.

One of the big keys to Trenton's four-point lead at the half was the ineffective offensive rebounding by the Roadrunners. During the first 20 minutes, they pulled off only three.

State Fair led early by four points, but quickly surrendered it. Trenton's biggest lead in the first half and later in the game was four, a cushion they enjoyed numerous times in the contest.

Steele and Johnson, who reeled off the Roadrunners' first 18 points in the second half, pulled the score even with 15:24 to go in the contest at 38-38. But it wasn't until 8:59 was left on the clock that the Roadrunners enjoyed their first lead since early in the game on a field goal by Steele, which gave SFCC a 52-50 lead.

SFCC pushed its margin to 58-52 with 6:02 to go, but the stubborn Pirates wouldn't fold and kept cutting into the lead.

Steele and Johnson kept kindling the fire and padded the SFCC lead to nine, 63-54, with 3:13 showing. However, with 1:06 to go, Trenton was behind by only three points.

Ahead 66-62 with 34 seconds to go, State Fair guard Glyn Bennett fouled Tony Grundy. Second later, Hardin was whistled for a technical foul.

Fortunately for State Fair,

Trenton wasn't in the bonus situation and Bennett's personal wasn't a shooting foul.

Brent Cook, who helped hold his ex-California (Mo.) High School teammate Johnson scoreless in the first half, stepped to the line to shoot the technical. He missed, but the ball still belonged to Trenton. Bland scored with 18 seconds to go, trimming SFCC's lead to 66-64.

Cook committed his fifth foul of the game with five seconds to go on Johnson. Johnson went to the line and sank the front end of the bonus situation, but missed the second.

Trenton hauled in the rebound and quickly called time out with three seconds to go.

The only thing Barton didn't want his club to do was foul on Trenton's final shot of the game. Uncontested, Bland made the Pirates' last shot, but State Fair wasn't about to let him draw the foul.

"The big thing, I think," said Barton, "was the way we held our poise. It had to be one of the biggest factors in the game," he concluded.

For State Fair, it's back to the road for conference dates in Highland, Kan., Saturday, and Haskell Institute in Lawrence, Kan., Tuesday. The Roadrunners return to the Fairgrounds Jan. 29 for a non-league game against Crowder College of Neosho, Mo.

Scoring

State Fair (67) — Glyn Bennett 4, Shelby Brown 10, Lyonel Hardin 15, Charles Johnson 17, Ray Steele 19, James Sumlin 2.

Kaysinger Conference

Grems take on Mustangs

Sacred Heart, which snapped a four-game losing streak Tuesday night with a 52-50 victory over Lincoln, will go for victory No. 5 in Kaysinger Conference play in Hughesville Friday night.

The Grems-Mustangs' matchup is one of three league games scheduled tonight. Cole Camp makes the short trek to Stover in the conference's key game of the night.

Stover, which has lost two of its last three games since fashioning an 11-game winning streak, leads the conference with a 4-0 record. The contest is a must game for the visiting Bluebirds, who are 5-2 in league play and close out conference action with the contest.

The only other Kaysinger Conference game tonight is at LaMonte, where the Vikings play host to Lincoln.

Sacred Heart evened its overall record at 8-8 with Tuesday night's narrow victory over Lincoln, but for the Mustangs, the season has been a long one. Northwest has won only one of its 13 games. That victory did, however, produce a win in conference play, when they upended LaMonte.

In the Cole Camp-Stover pairing, if the Bluebirds win, they could jump right back into the thick of the conference race, and would be able to sit back and see how Stover, Smithton and possibly Sacred Heart come out in their remaining games.

One thing is for sure in Friday night's action, if the Bluebirds' girls team defeats Stover, Cole Camp could chalk up a first in Kaysinger play. Cole Camp is 7-0 in girls action and would annex the first Kaysinger girls title with the win. This is the first year of conference play in the nine-team league for girls basketball.

On the other hand, Stover is at the bottom of the heap in the girls division, still seeking their first victory; the Bulldogs have lost all four of their league games.

The only team that could possibly tie the Bluebirds for the girls conference title is Sacred Heart, which counts as its only conference loss a 32-26 decision at the hands of Cole Camp. Sacred Heart stands at 5-1 in conference and overall girls play.

"We feel that the fans like to see more colorful uniforms," said Bing Devine, general manager of the National League baseball team.

Home uniforms will continue to be white.

Rucker scheduled for knee surgery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Browns wide receiver Reggie Rucker was scheduled to undergo knee surgery for a torn cartilage here today, according to the National Football League team. Last season Rucker came within two catches of tying the Browns' single season reception mark of 62.

Bolivar, Clinton, Sherwood advance

CLINTON — Sherwood and Bolivar moved into the semifinals of the annual Clinton Invitational Basketball Tournament here Thursday night.

In the night's other game, the host Cardinals dealt Knob Noster its second loss of the tournament and moved into Saturday night's consolation finals.

Bolivar got a quick start on Windsor, 14-8, in the first quarter and pulled away to a 56-45 opening-round victory over the Greyhounds.

In the night's other first-round action Thursday, Sherwood and Warsaw slowed the ball down and Sherwood came out on top of the stall tactics, 29-16.

Knob Noster, a one-point loser to Raymore-Peculiar in the first round (40-39) Wednesday, suffered another narrow defeat, 41-39 at the hands of Clinton.

Billy Cooper of Bolivar was the night's leading scorer; he pumped in 21 in the Liberators' victory over Windsor.

Clinton's Joe Murphy scored 20 against Knob Noster.

Action resumes here tonight with three games on tap. Butler and Raymore-Peculiar square off at 7:30 p.m. in the upper-bracket semifinals. At 9 p.m., Bolivar and Sherwood clash.

NCAA strengthens rules on blocking and roughing QB's

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — While rejecting a tie-breaker and a return to dropkicked field goals, the football rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association has adopted new blocking regulations and stricter rules against roughing quarterbacks. The committee ordered a 15-yard penalty for roughing quarterbacks, even if the play is completed, with the penalty to take effect at the point at which the play ends, said Cliff Speegle, chairman of the committee and commissioner of the Southwest Athletic Conference.

Speegle, of Dallas, told a news conference Thursday if the play results in a touchdown, the penalty will be imposed against the offending team on the subsequent kickoff.

Blocking rules were extensively rewritten during the four-day conference in the hope player safety would be improved, Speegle said.

"No opportunity would be given to grasp, which would be a normal defense if an opponent is shouldering off a block," he said.

The definition of spearing was also broadened to include any deliberate use of the helmet in an attempt to stop an opponent.

"No player shall use his helmet, or butt or ram an opponent," Speegle said. "Furthermore, no player shall intentionally strike a runner with the crown or top of his helmet."

"The committee was following medical research evidence which shows that a football player whose head is in a lower position is more subject to injury than a player with his face up."

The committee made hip and thigh pads mandatory equipment for college football players.

The committee endorsed resolutions of the American Football Coaches' Association calling for coaches not to teach that the head is the primary point of contact for blocking and tackling, for the elimination of the use of self-propelled, mechanized apparatus in teaching blocking and tackling, and for greater emphasis in the elimination of spearing.

The committee wrote the following rules for teammates of a runner or passer who use their hands and arms in blocking or to supplement a shoulder block:

—The hands shall be in advance of the elbows.

—The hands shall be inside the frame of the blocker's body and below the shoulder of the blocker and his opponent.

—The hands and arms shall be parallel to the ground.

—The arms shall not be extended more than one-half of a full expansion.

—The hands shall be cupped or closed with the palms not facing the opponent.

—The hands and arms shall not be used to deliver a blow.

—The hands and arms shall not be used to grasp, pull, encircle or lift an opponent.

—The hands or arms shall not be used to lock or clamp an opponent.

—In no block shall the hands be locked.

Tigers take 2-0 mark to Iowa St.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Missouri's high-flying basketball express alights in Ames, Iowa, Saturday to confront the troubled Iowa State Cyclones, who finally won a game but lost a coach.

In other Big Eight Conference games, Nebraska visits Colorado, Oklahoma hosts Kansas State and Kansas plays at Oklahoma State.

Missouri, 2-0 in league play and 14-2 over-all, comes off an 88-67 thrashing of Oklahoma State. The Tigers, who exhibited considerable depth in that game after all three starting front liners sat out 16 minutes of the second half, each with four fouls, left OSU Coach Guy Strong shaking his head.

"As I've said before I definitely think Missouri is the best team in the conference," he said. "Missouri is one of the best teams in the Big Eight that I've seen in several years."

The Tigers, No. 18 in the national rankings, sport the league's second leading scorer in Willie Smith and second leading rebounder in Stan Ray.

Iowa State, 1-1 in the conference and 1-14 over-all, is now under the guidance of Gus Guydon and Jack Sutter. The assistant coaches were named to serve on an interim basis after Ken Trickey resigned Wednesday. Ironically, the No. 1 scorer and No. 1 rebounder in the Big Eight, Hercle Ivy and Art Johnson, wear Iowa State uniforms.

Nebraska, 2-0 and 11-4, barely escaped an upset by Oklahoma

Wednesday night in Lincoln, pulling out a 68-67 victory in the final seconds.

Cornhusker Coach Joe Cipriano has assembled what appears to be a very solid team, capable of challenging for the title.

"We have caused some problems," he said this week. "But you still have to look at Missouri as the one everybody is concerned about."

The Huskers will be going against a Colorado squad that bowed to Kansas State earlier this week, 70-63, but put on a furious second-half surge. Colorado, 1-1, 4-10, had appeared to be on the way to a humiliating defeat after falling behind at the half, 44-42.

Detroit racetrack was built in 1950 and is 16 miles from downtown Detroit.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Once in a while some nasty opponent interferes with your Blackwood call by bidding over it. There are lots of ways to handle this sort of interference. The one we like to use is to double to show no aces, pass to show one ace and bid to show more.

What do you do if your opponent interferes at such a high level that you have to bid seven if you bid at all? In this case you simply double to say: "Partner, I don't think we can make seven". Pass to say:

"Partner, I think we can make seven." Of course, if you are sure you can make seven you go ahead and bid it. West's three-club bid was one of those nonvulnerable bids that some players try on occasion. North's Blackwood four notrump was a slight overbid, but he liked his distribution. East's seven-club call put a lot of pressure on South but South was ready. South studied his hand carefully. His heart suit was good. He had both minor suit aces and the queen of spades. It was just unthinkable for North to be Blackwooding without ace-king of spades and ace of hearts so South bid the lay down grand slam.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader wants to know what he should bid with: A ♠ x x x K Q 8 5 2 ♣ x x x x after his right hand opponent opened one diamond. The answer is that he should pass. A double would be for takeout, a two-diamond call would be a cue bid of sorts and a three-diamond bid might be really hurt.

Majority prefers childless marriages

Dear Readers: A few weeks ago, a young married couple wrote to say they were undecided as to whether or not to have a family. They asked me to solicit opinions from parents of young children as well as from older couples whose families were grown. "Was it worth it?" they wanted to know. "Were the rewards enough to make up for the grief?" The question, as I put it to my readers, was this: "If you had it to do over again, would you have children?"

Well, dear friends, the responses were staggering. Much to my surprise, 70 per cent of those who responded said "NO."

Here are some excerpts from the most fascinating (and disturbing) mail I've received in a long time.

From Fargo, N.D.: My husband and I were married eight years before we had our first child. Within four years we had three. (The third one was a mistake.) Then I had my tubes tied and my husband had a vasectomy — just to make sure. We both agree our happiest years were before we had the kids. They have brought us a lot of heartache and very little pleasure. If we had it to do over again we'd have remained childless. — Rather Die Than Sign My Name

From Tampa, Fla.: I am 40, my husband is 45. We have two children under the age of eight. I was an attractive, fulfilled career woman before I had these kids. Now I'm an exhausted, nervous wreck who misses her job and sees very little of her husband. He's got a "friend." I'm sure, and I don't blame him. Our children took all the romance out of our marriage. I'm too tired for sex, conversation or anything else. Sign me — Too Late For Tears.

From Chippewa Falls, Wis.: As the mother of six, I can tell you my life would have had no meaning without my children. Sure there are runny noses, chicken pox, arms in slings, fights, loads of laundry and sky-high grocery bills, but when I tuck them in at night, I thank God I've been so richly blessed. — Worth The Pain

From New York: I've lived 70 years, and I speak from experience, as a mother of five. Was it worth it? No. The early years were difficult. Illness, rebellion, lack of motivation (we called it shiftlessness and laziness in our day). One was seriously disturbed — in and out of mental hospitals. Another went the Gay Lib route. Two are now living in communes (we never hear from them). Another has gone loony with the help of a phony religious leader who should be in jail. Not one of our children has given us any pleasure. God knows we did our best, but we were failures as parents and they are failures as people. — Sad Story

From Chicago: Should you have children? It depends on what you want them for. Do you want a child who will be everything you weren't? Someone whose achievements you can brag about? Do you want company in your old age? Forget it. Have children only if you can give them unselfish love and expect nothing in return. Only then will you have a fighting chance of turning out emotionally healthy individuals who will appreciate and respect you — and themselves. — Been There

Dear Been There: There's still hope for mankind so long as there are human beings like you around. May your tribe increase.

U. S. gives Seminoles $16 million

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The Seminole Indians, forced off their tribal lands by U.S. troops more than 100 years ago and pressing their claims ever since, have agreed to sell Florida.

About 300 members of the tribe voted overwhelmingly Thursday to accept $16 million from the federal government as compensation to the 4,000 to 12,000 modern-day Seminoles for 32 million acres of land covering nearly the entire peninsula.

The Seminoles originally sought $47 million for about 40 million acres, and Chief Howard Tommie said the final offer was "nowhere near what the land is worth."

"But if we try to press it and the mood of the government changes, we could be left with-out a dime. Our lawyers say this is the best we can do. Who has another 25 years to fight?"

The offer, accepted after myriad legal battles since 1949, amounts to about 50 cents an acre for land that includes Miami Beach, Disney World and Cape Canaveral.

The land was seized by Gen. Andrew Jackson during the Seminole Wars of 1823 and 1832 and under the Indian Removal Act of 1840. Appraisers said the land was then worth three cents to $2.50 an acre.

The federal government earlier rejected Seminole claims to land above the Old Spanish Road between St. Augustine and Pensacola and other areas covered by old Spanish land grants.

Only eight votes were cast against the final settlement at the packed meeting Thursday night conducted in three languages — Miccosukee, the Seminole language; Creek, a related language some Seminoles speak; and English.

The settlement must be reviewed by the U.S. Indian Claims Commission, the money must be appropriated by Congress and the payment must be divided among Seminoles in Florida and in Oklahoma.

Audubon protests bounty on coyotes

The Mosage chapter of the National Audubon Society voted Wednesday night in opposition to the reinstatement of coyote bounties in Pettis County.

Organized last year, the Mosage chapter covers 13 counties, but draws most of its membership from Pettis, Saline and Johnson Counties. Its main purpose is to encourage wildlife conservation.

Bill Claycomb, Hughesville, treasurer of the chapter, said the club felt that livestock losses to coyotes were not "that big a problem." There was also concern expressed, he said, that Pettis County would be paying bounties for coyotes from surrounding counties.

The County Court budgeted $4,000 for the so-called "wolf" bounties this year, and is paying $5 for adult coyotes and $2.50 for pups.

A check of five surrounding counties by The Democrat-Capital shows that only one is paying bounties this high. Cooper County pays no bounties at all, while Saline County pays $2 for all coyotes and Benton County pays $2.50. Johnson County pays only 50 cents for pups and $1 for adults. Morgan County's bounty is $5 for adult coyotes.

Claycomb said the Audubon Club also felt the county should not subsidize "professional sportsmen" who hunt coyotes by "making a big production number of it" with the use of dog packs, trucks and CB radio equipment.

Claycomb added that his family farms a large amount of acreage near Hughesville, and that there has been no coyote problem.

Lloyd Lewellen, extension farm agent here, agreed that the coyote problem was exaggerated. He said he was not aware of any movement by farmers to get the bounty reinstated. He credited coyote hunters with leading the drive in this direction.

However Jerry Conaway, Hughesville, president of the Pettis County Farm Bureau, said he agreed with the court's decision. "I think it is a good idea. It should never have been taken off in the first place," Conaway said of the bounty. "Farmers make their living off livestock and coyotes are killing them."

Conaway said the coyote population has increased since the bounty was dropped a few years ago. They deplete their normal food supplies and then turn to livestock, he said.

Conaway said, however, that no farmers had come to him personally in support of the bounty and he knows of no others who approached the County Court. But he said the "general feeling of the people" was in favor of the bounty system.

Dey resigns post

Interim Police Chief Gary Dey has resigned, effective Wednesday, and Mayor Jerry Jones said Thursday morning he expects to name a second interim chief today.

Sources close to the matter told The Democrat-Capital that a Kansas City Police Department official is being considered for the post. The possibility of seeking interim help from the Highway Patrol has also been discussed, one source said.

Dey told newsmen Thursday morning, as he prepared to move from the chief's office, that he was resigning for "purely personal reasons." He said that these reasons did not concern any problems with the mayor, police officers or the citizens of Sedalia.

Concerning Dey's letter of resignation, Jones said, "Gary's letter did not include any reason. If Gary doesn't want to say why, I don't feel that I can."

Jones said that Dey personally delivered the resignation to him Wednesday morning.

A report that there had been a conflict or disagreement between Jones and Dey was denied by both men Thursday morning.

Dey stressed that he was not asked to resign. He also said that he had not been threatened or had any problems with police officers leading to his resignation.

Dey was named interim police chief Dec. 19, after Jones fired Police Chief William Miller. A public hearing before the Police Personnel Board on Miller's dismissal is still pending. No date has been set for that hearing.

In a written statement in December, Jones informed Miller he was discharged "for inefficient service in supervising and providing necessary leadership to the members of the police department" and because of "the loss of confidence in your ability to function efficiently by the public."

Jones said that Sedalia was without an acting police chief Thursday morning.

Jones said that he is limited in the flexibility of the decision "since it is a temporary position."

"I'm looking at some different options," he said. He did not admit or deny the possibility that he might seek a replacement from outside Sedalia. However, the replacement, Jones said, would have to be someone with a knowledge of police work, and management experience.

Dey added that he wanted to thank the citizens of Sedalia and the officers he had commanded for their cooperation. Concerning his personal reasons for quitting, Dey would only say that they were personal and that he "did not wish to discuss them."

Jones said that Dey will return to his former job as administrator of the federal Community Development Block Grant program.

Dey said that he has been offered jobs with a law enforcement agency and an educational agency, but would not comment further.

Rice says he'll cast vote also

Saying he resented "the implication" of a news article in Wednesday's Democrat-Capital, Police Personnel Board Chairman Jim Rice said Thursday he will vote at the dismissal hearing for former police chief William E. Miller.

A date for the hearing will be set Friday. "I have never indicated to anyone nor was it my intent that I would not vote at that hearing," Rice said. "I resent the further inference from that article that I would be pressured into voting if it were my mind not to vote."

"I am certain that anybody who knows me knows that I am not attempting to dodge any responsibility as chairman of the Police Personnel Board," he added. "I would have done so a long time ago because I could see it would involve a considerable amount of time."

The Wednesday article cited speculation by members of the Concerned Citizens Committee that Rice had planned to act as a presiding officer at the hearing and would not vote on the dismissal.

The committee voted unanimously Tuesday to send letters to all board members urging them to vote at the hearing and discussed, but did not adopt, a motion specifying that Rice also vote.

Rice, an attorney, said he has spent "untold hours on this thing, involving a considerable personal expense of loss of time from my (law) office. I spend a minimum of one hour of office time per day on police matters."

"Furthermore," he said, "I don't feel that it is a proper way to comment on speculation on what somebody may do and especially to put it on the front page."

"I'm no Johnny-come-lately on this thing," he continued. "I've been working on the police board on this thing for two

Talks end with little progress

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev ended talks Thursday night with some progress reported but no end to a 14-month deadlock on a nuclear arms agreement.

A U.S. official involved in the negotiations said Kissinger considered the three-day visit to Moscow worthwhile and that the two sides were now closer to an agreement in principle than they were before his mission.

But the U.S. side acknowledged no agreement in principle on a new treaty was reached in 7½ hours of negotiations between Kissinger and Brezhnev.

Kissinger was to meet Friday with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on the Middle East and other matters apart from the nuclear question.

After the talk with Gromyko he leaves for Brussels to report to ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Kissinger is taking the undisclosed Soviet proposals to Washington for consideration by President Ford and the National Security Council. Further negotiations could conceivably be conducted through channels including Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Without describing the Soviet position, the U.S. official, who barred use of his name, said Brezhnev put forward "some ideas of considerable interest to us" that will now have to be studied and evaluated.

Kissinger was understood to have had less success in getting the Soviets to discuss Angola. Brezhnev has reportedly resisted his efforts to use the nuclear negotiations as leverage in Angola, where Soviet-backed forces, aided by an estimated 10,000 Cuban troops, were win-

Truce holds in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Syrian-negotiated cease-fire appeared to take hold Thursday night as most Christian, Moslem and Palestinian gunmen obeyed the call to end Lebanon's civil war.

Security forces sources said 61 persons were killed and more than 100 wounded Thursday throughout the country. Fierce fighting continued up to the cease-fire deadline at 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EST).

Scattered shooting was reported in some areas a few hours later but a Palestinian guerrilla spokesman said "people were shooting into the air in jubilation at the peace."

The state-run television broadcast statements by Christian and Moslem leaders declaring their acceptance of the cease-fire and gratitude for Syria's mediation initiative.

Officials said the Syrians proposed political changes to give the Moslem majority a greater voice. They said the new setup would involve a "second republic" inside Lebanon, with France and Syria as its guarantors.

Official French sources in Paris said, however, that France had not agreed to the co-guarantor role and was awaiting further details.

Syria and Lebanon were administered by France under a League of Nations mandate from 1920 to 1941.

During those years the Lebanese system evolved under which the president must be a Maronite Christian and the premier a Sunni Moslem. France transferred power to the Lebanese government Jan. 1, 1944, but has remained influential in the area.

Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat issued an order to "shoot to kill" looters and gunmen attacking prisons to free criminals.

The guerrilla security force — or Armed Struggle Command — was the only organized unit fighting lawlessness in the Moslem-controlled western area of Beirut.

Gangs of looters exchanged gunfire among themselves and with Palestinian police. Thieves stripped Beirut's largest department store, Spinney's, of $625,000 worth of goods, police said.

Robbers also ranged through the plush Hamra shopping district, breaking windows and grabbing merchandise in an apparent effort to beat the ceasefire deadline and the return of some law and order to Lebanon's ravaged capital.

The Palestine guerrilla police force, trying to keep some semblance of order, killed one looter and wounded five others.

Protesters demand end to abortions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of persons joined in a series of rallies in Washington on Thursday to tell Congress and the administration that the abortion question has not been settled and to call for a constitutional amendment banning abortion.

Supporters of the annual March for Life first gathered in Lafayette Park across from the White House on the third anniversary of a Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

They later moved to the Ellipse between the White House and the Washington Monument. Police preliminary estimates said 10,000 of them marched from the Ellipse down Pennsylvania Avenue to the Capitol.

At each stop the demonstrators paraded in the windy, subfreezing weather with picket signs. They chanted slogans calling for a constitutional amendment ending abortion.

Various groups representing state and local organizations lobbied individual congressmen in pursuit of support for an amendment.

And representatives of the march group met with officials of the Department of Justice and Health, Education and Welfare and the President's Domestic Council to transmit their viewpoint.

Nellie J. Gray, chairman of the March for Life Committee, said the main objective of the meeting was to begin a dialogue with the administration on the subject of abortion.

"The big thing is to open channels of communication because we have not had those channels into the executive department," she said.

Transplant program

Kidney donations accepted

Potential kidney donors in Sedalia and the surrounding area can now donate kidneys at Bothwell Hospital for transplant operations in Kansas City or Columbia hospitals, it was announced Thursday at a press conference here.

The procedure was made possible by the introduction Thursday morning of a $4,000 perfusion machine, a portable unit to which the donated kidneys are attached for transfer to a transplant site. Similar machines have been in use in Columbia and Kansas City and are also located in Springfield, Jefferson City, Joplin and St. Joseph.

Two local surgeons, Dr. Robert Glass and Dr. Won Sull, are trained to remove kidneys from donor patients and prepare them for transplant. Helping in the procedure will be Pat Reynolds, a hospital employee who has undergone training as a perfusion machine technician at Bothwell Hospital.

The transplant program is sponsored by the Kidney Foundation of Kansas and Western Missouri and the Midwest Organ Bank. Dr. Donald Cross, a staff physician at the Kansas City Veterans Hospital who works with the foundation, said there is an increased emphasis on securing kidney donors from outside the Kansas City area, where the transplant program originated around six years ago.

"There is a desperate shortage of donors in the immediate metropolitan area," he said. "That is primarily why we are expanding our efforts in outstate Missouri."

More than 300 kidney patients in the foundation's service area are now sustained by artificial kidney machines eight hours a day for three days a week. In a written statement, Dr. Frederick C. Whittier, president of the foundation, acknowledged that such machines are life-

Quota integration shown as failure

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — Professor Nathan Glazer has all the credentials. He holds a doctorate from Columbia; he taught six years at Berkeley; he has lectured at Bennington; since 1969 he's been a professor of education and social structure at Harvard. In the field of race relations, he is a morocco-bound, hand-tooled, gilt-edged, 100 per cent rag content integrationist. And, hallelujah, he has written a book.

Kilpatrick

The book is "Affirmative Discrimination: Ethnic Inequality and Public Policy," just published by Basic Books. Do not be discouraged by that zinger of a title. This is no work of yawning pedantry. Glazer has put together a lucid, comprehensive, hard-hitting discussion of the lunacies that have evolved from our national quest for equal opportunity. He packs a wallop.

To repeat: Glazer himself is resolutely opposed to discrimination; he believes absolutely in integration. He asks, rhetorically, "isn't integration good for education?" His answer is, "of course." He supports a public policy that strives for "an even distribution of different races and ethnic backgrounds in the schools."

From that point of view, Glazer looks at what is happening in employment, in education, in housing, and in public policies generally. And he is profoundly dismayed.

The goal of "equal opportunity," he concludes, has been sidetracked. The courts and the bureaucrats instead are pursuing a goal of "statistical parity," which is not the same thing at all. The government wields a heavy hand. It is the hand that holds the purse strings of federal grants and federal contracts. With this heavy hand, the government seeks to impose racial quotas. Nothing, in Glazer's view, could be more violative of American ideals.

In the process, the just and humane teachings of Brown v. Board of Education have been turned on their head. If the landmark Brown case laid down one rule, it was this: No black child may be denied admittance to a public school because of his race. Now, ironically, black children are being denied admission to public schools precisely because of their race.

North and South, the tendency of courts and bureaucrats is to ignore the individual child altogether. The child's rights are subordinated to the mass manipulation of racial groups. The idea is that "a stable racial balance must prevail, for only that will give satisfactory evidence that segregation has been overcome."

Yet it is manifestly impossible, Glazer observes, for a stable racial balance ever to prevail. The goal can be achieved, if at all, only by constant reassignment of pupils by race. People move; neighborhoods change; a mobile society responds to innumerable influence of social and economic fluctuation. The "mix" cannot be kept constant. Individual freedom, which was supposed to be enhanced by the Brown decision, is restricted and constrained instead.

Glazer's book came from the press, by coincidence, on the same day that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare announced new rules for the reporting of student spankings. The new rules are said to be a relaxation of former, more complicated rules applying to student discipline in 16,000 public school districts.

The new, less complicated rules will require regular reports "showing whether disciplined students are American Indian or Alaskan Native, Asian or Pacific Islander, black (not of Hispanic origin), Hispanic, or white (not of Hispanic origin)." Failure to maintain these meticulous records will be cause for suspension of federal aid.

Perhaps the worst aspect of these grim efforts, as Glazer sees it, is that the efforts are self-defeating. Long before "affirmative action" became the ominous federal command, black employment opportunities were naturally increasing. Personal incomes were steadily rising among minority groups. The coercive effort to achieve quotas has served only to increase racial tensions and to deny truly equal opportunities.

Southern critics have been saying all this for years, but Southerners are attainted. Their remonstrances are dismissed out of hand. Well, no one can hang the yahoo label on Nathan Glazer. If federal bureaucrats and federal judges would take his reasoned arguments to heart, we might possibly — just possibly — turn away from racial lunacy and back toward racial sanity instead.

Art Buchwald Lobbying a senator at home

WASHINGTON — The appointment of Marion Javits to the job of promoting Iran National Airlines has raised some eyebrows in Washington, where eyebrow-raising is the national sport.

Buchwald

The problem is that in order to work for a foreign government Mrs. Javits had to register as a lobbyist. Her husband, Sen. Jack Javits, is on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which occasionally discusses the subject of Iran. The eyebrow-raising ers in Washington believe that there could be a conflict of interest in the two jobs. Mrs. Javits insists there isn't, and she would never discuss Iran with her husband.

But it could be a sticky situation.

Sen. Javits comes home to New York for a weekend with his wife.

"Hi, dear. What's for dinner?" he asks.

"I have a surprise for you," Mrs. Javits says. "Caspian caviar just flown in from Iran on its new super 747 Boeing Jet, which now flies to 60 countries in every part of the world."

"What else?"

"Flaming shish kebab on a sword, and a new recipe for Persian rice which the Shah's chef gave me."

"It sounds great," the senator says.

"It is one of the many dishes featured on one of the world's best and safest airlines. When it comes to food, Iran National Airlines treats you like a Shah."

"That's a lovely dress you're wearing, Marion."

"It comes from Tehran. You can't believe the shopping bargains you can find in this beautiful historical city. It's a tourist's dream. This dress cost me $45, and it's hand-woven. If I bought it in New York, it would have been $200. You actually can make up the cost of your air fare on Iran National Airlines by just visiting one of the many exciting bazaars throughout the city."

"Well, it's very becoming. What have you been doing all week?"

"Oh, I've been keeping busy. I went to the Persian art exhibit at the Met, and I saw the Iranian Ballet at Lincoln Center, and I entertained a group of travel agents from Detroit."

"That's nice."

"Jack, do you know that you can fly from New York to Tehran and stop over in London and Paris for as long as you want to at no extra charge by taking advantage of Iran National Airlines' special winter rates?"

"I must admit I didn't."

"The sad thing is that Iran National Airlines does not have landing rights in St. Louis and Houston. It seems so unfair that people have to change planes at Kennedy Airport in order to go to Tehran."

"I imagine it does. Say, aren't these new dishes?"

"Yes. Each one has a picture of the Shah and his wife on it. I got them wholesale from the people who cater Iran National Airlines."

"They're very attractive," the senator says.

"Have as much caviar as you want. I have oodles of it in the icebox," Mrs. Javits says.

"Isn't it expensive, Marion?"

"Not for us. I'm working now. I make $67,500 a year."

"No kidding. What are you doing?"

"I can't tell you, Jack, as it would be a conflict of interest. I promised I would never discuss my job with you as it would only cause raised eyebrows in Washington."

"Can you give me a hint?"

"All right, but just a teeny one. What would you like with your dinner — coffee, tea or milk?"

Clarifying the law

Missourians for Honest Elections (MHE), the group that promoted the state campaign reform act that was overwhelmingly approved by voters in November of 1974, has taken steps to clarify a disputed provision of the act.

MHE filed suit Tuesday in St. Louis County Circuit Court, challenging the Missouri Election Commission's (MEC) interpretation of the $500 exemption provision of the law.

The MEC voted 4-2 recently to require candidates who spend and receive less than $500 for their campaigns to file reports detailing their economic interests. MHE maintains that even this report is not required.

The language of the law itself is ambiguous on the point. In its pre-election literature, however, MHE made it clear that the total exemption from reporting pertained. This newspaper had that same understanding when it endorsed the initiative. MHE maintains that most of the voters understood this as well.

Critics of the act, however, many of whom would prefer NO manner of reform at all, have insisted on the other interpretation. The result has been a landslide of unnecessary reports and an undue workload put upon the elections commission.

More serious than this, however, is the effect the commission's interpretation of the law has on would-be candidates for a host of local, non-paying offices, who are presently reluctant to file. Certainly this was not the intent of the law, nor of the voters.

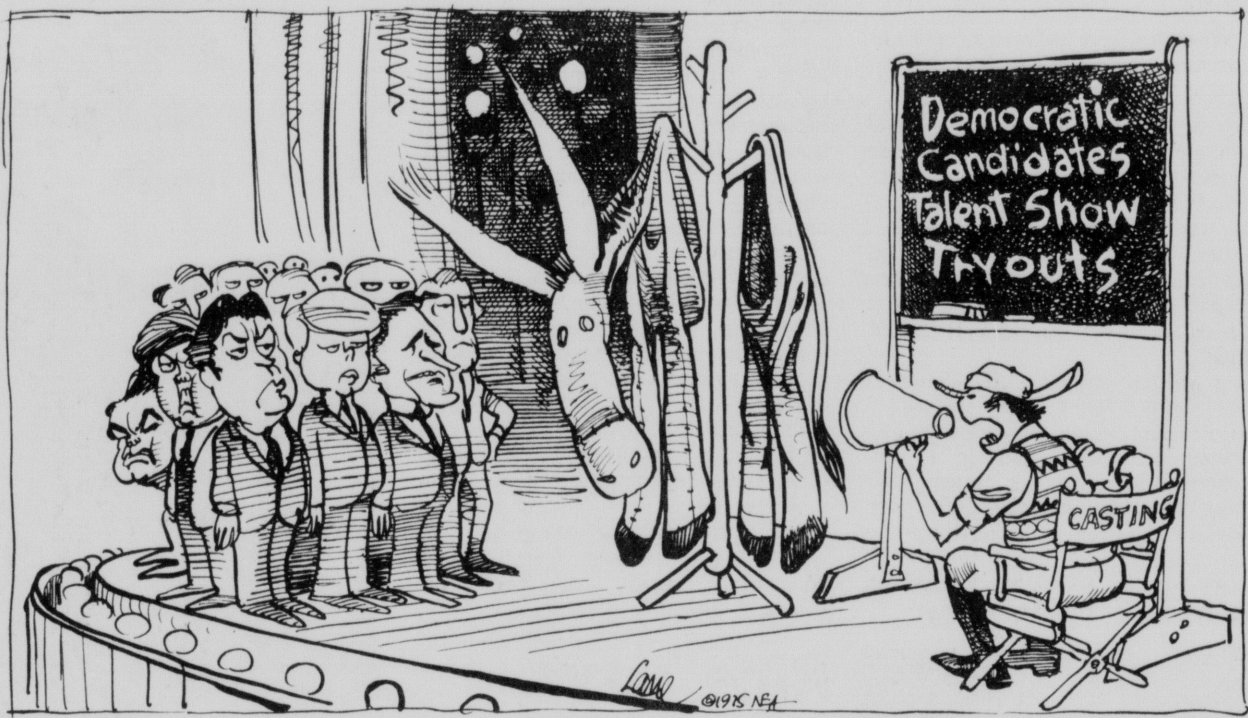

We hope the St. Louis County Circuit Court rules expeditiously on the question. That way the law can start doing what it was supposed to do — police major elections — and cease inhibiting the democratic process on lower levels.

Good choice for Chamber

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to its credit, has lost no time in finding a successor to resigned executive manager Larry Melton.

On Tuesday the board announced that Jake Siragusa will take over the position. He is scheduled to assume his new duties on March 1.

As the immediate past president of the Chamber, Siragusa gave the organization energetic and innovative leadership during his two terms. This experience, in addition to his many years as a successful businessman in Sedalia, make him an excellent choice for the position of executive manager.

"C'mon, fellas! We're looking for the LEAD! We can fill the other position any time!"

COLSON CONFIDENTIAL. In the first book from Richard Nixon's inner circle, Charles "Chuck" Colson has given some fascinating insights into the Watergate era.

We published highlights of the Colson book, "Born Again," in an earlier column. From our bootleg copy, here are a few more revelations:

✓The triumphant Richard Nixon could hardly bring himself to respond gracefully after Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., conceded the loss of the 1972 election.

Nixon began "composing one draft after another of a telegram to send to his vanquished opponent..." recalls Colson. "It was now close to two in the morning. McGovern had conceded hours earlier."

"By the rules of the game, Nixon's response was long overdue. Yet, as fast as the words rolled off his tongue, he would reject them."

Finally Nixon, the master of dirty politics, turned to Colson and said: "How can I say something nice after he kept comparing me to Hitler?"

Merry-go-round Additional details from Colson's book

✓Colson confesses ruefully that he "should have been wary of the spy business" after a pre-Watergate episode involving plumber E. Howard Hunt.

The celebrated waterbugger sought to pump a CIA operative about the possible involvement of ex-President John F. Kennedy in the 1963 Diem coup in South Vietnam. In his characteristic conspiratorial fashion, Hunt arranged a rendezvous in a vacant office which he had carefully bugged. He planted the tape recorder under the couch and secured a bottle of Scotch so the CIA man "would talk more freely."

"For two hours, the two men guzzled a fifth of the White House's best," recounts Colson, "while I awaited the results in my office." At last Hunt appeared, bleary-eyed, tie askew. He stammered sheepishly that the evening was a waste, he had no tape.

It turned out that Hunt had sat heavily on the couch over his own recording machine, "crushing the sensitive equipment."

Lacking the evidence to embarrass President Kennedy, Hunt later simply concocted it in a series of forged papers.

✓The White House paranoia against the press, according to Colson, was beyond belief. Once an order came down declaring: "No one on the staff is to see a reporter from the New York Times for any purpose whatsoever."

Another time, Colson was seen lunching with liberal columnist Joseph Kraft. Afterward Colson was summoned before White House staff chief H.R. Haldeman who dressed him down. "If you want to stay around here, stay away from that (bleep)!" snapped Haldeman.

✓During the May, 1970, anti-war demonstrations in Washington, Colson reports, a battalion of Air Force troops were hiding out in the Executive Office Building in full combat dress, complete with camouflaged helmets, ready to defend the White House next door from a possible mob attack.

Melton clarifies his festival role

Perhaps I should offer a few words of explanation and clarification regarding the Ragtime Festival board of directors meeting, and my position.

First, the board agreed to wait two weeks before making a decision on next year's event. They want to get some specific indication of interest from the community, and your survey question for next week will help a great deal in this regard.

Second, I'm still strongly in favor of continuing the event. It has brought excellent entertainment to our community and a great deal of positive attention as well. It emphasizes our heritage and makes it a part of our bicentennial year as well.

Third, I am still quite anxious to assist with another event, though my time will be considerably more limited this year than it has been in the past. Therefore, we will need more volunteers to take over some of the labor involved in the event. I'll still be in Sedalia and I want to help. The board did not make a decision on a director and the announcement of my total demise is a little premature.

Regarding the question of leadership, however, I feel it is important that the festival broaden its base and involve more people in this community year after year. Organizations that do not experience a normal, regular change of leaders tend to die away or become stagnant due to the lack of new ideas and involvement.

The new festival board feels it needs a strong indication of community support and it is important that the event become either self-sustaining, or attract an organization or business that can underwrite its success.

Right now our community has many higher priorities, but I do feel that the festival has been and can continue to be a worthwhile effort, one that will continue to bring much credit and attention to us each year. If it continues to be the interest of just a few, perhaps it is time for it to respectively retire. We have had, after all, two excellent events and they alone can be a great source of pride.

Many people have been responsible for the past successes; those who have given time, our generous contributors and an excellent board of directors the past two years. To continue we must enlarge this group and begin to create an organization that can change from year to year while still maintaining the essence of the original festival and the man we honored.

Tools are stolen from man's truck

An electric drill, saw, miter box, and numerous other tools, were stolen sometime Wednesday night from a truck owned by Charles Hunsaker, 1120 East 13th. The truck was parked at Hunsaker's home at the time of the theft.

Police reported that a hammer left in the truck had apparently been used to break open a chest in which the tools were kept. No value was set for the loss.

Another citizens band radio was stolen from a car owned by Barbara Hightower, Marshall, sometime Tuesday night while it was parked at Bothwell Hospital. The radio was valued at $125.

Rex Real, a salesman at Bill Greer Motors, 1700 West Broadway, reported the theft, between Jan. 10 and Jan. 12, of four wire wheel covers, valued at $139. The wheel covers were taken from a 1976 car parked in front of the building.

A tricycle, valued at $25, was reported taken from a garage at 1816 South Ohio Tuesday night, police reported Thursday.

Talks

The third session of nuclear talks was delayed by what U.S. officials said was a meeting of the ruling Politburo, or of most of its principal members.

While the Politburo customarily sits on Thursdays, the meeting may also have been held to approve decisions made by Brezhnev in the arms talks. He is understood to be considering restrictions on where the Soviet Backfire bombers may be positioned in a trade off for U.S. limitations on the range of pilotless Cruise missiles.

Without giving details, Kissinger said, "We have made some suggestions. The Soviets have made some counter-proposals. We responded to those and they are studying them now."

While waiting for Foreign Minister Andre A. Gromyko, his guest for a luncheon of roast veal at the U.S. Embassy residence, Kissinger said there were "many possibilities" for trying to complete a compromise settlement.

One, he said, was for him to return here Sunday night after attending a scheduled meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels.

BOONVILLE — A Cooper County Circuit Court jury deliberated one hour and 20 minutes Thursday afternoon before convicting Al Willis, 48, 407 North Summit, of carrying a concealed weapon.

Willis was given until Feb. 9 to file a motion for a new trial. He is free on $2,500 bond pending post trial motions.

Willis was granted a change of venue Jan. 16 from Pettis County Circuit Court to Cooper County.

He was arrested by Sedalia police in late December 1974 on a charge of driving while intoxicated. A search allegedly revealed a .38-caliber revolver.

Women limited in BSA

BALTIMORE (AP) — Saying that growing boys need a man to lead them, the national president of the Boy Scouts of America announced Thursday the scouting movement has ruled out women as Cubmasters.

"Advice from sociologists and child psychologists has convinced us that leadership should be male and we believe that," said Arch Monson Jr., the scout official.

The question of female Cubmasters has been at issue here since last April when Cub Pack 471 in suburban Glen Burnie, Md., lost its charter. The charter was revoked after it was discovered that a woman, Marjorie Ripple, was the Cubmaster.

Mrs. Ripple, whose 10-year-old son was a member of the pack, said the pack was unable to find a male leader. Officials at the Boy Scouts national headquarters in New Jersey refused to accept her as Cubmaster. They said she could be a den mother, the person in charge of a small group of Cub scouts, but not leader of a Cub pack, the local unit in the scouting program for boys 8 to 10 years of age.

"I don't know what they want a community to do," Mrs. Ripple said Thursday. "If we don't have a man, and we didn't, what are we supposed to do?"

Mrs. Ripple's pack was later replaced by one headed by a man. Several other Baltimore area Cub packs were also threatened with action because women were in top positions.

U.S., Spain agree on defense treaty

MADRID, Spain (AP) — The United States and Spain have agreed on a full-fledged defense treaty to continue American use of military bases in Spain after nearly 20 years of military cooperation. U.S. sources reported Thursday.

The treaty, requiring approval by two-thirds of the U.S. Senate, would be a clear attempt by both sides to bolster Western defenses against communism and fill a gap caused by faltering NATO allies in the Mediterranean.

Officially, Washington and Madrid declined to confirm a final agreement had been reached. A State Department spokesman said he did not rule out the chance that a treaty would be ready for signing this weekend.

The treaty would call for an estimated $1 billion in U.S. aid and credits to Spain, 85 per cent of which would be in military hardware, over the next five years.

U.S. sources said the aid would include some sophisticated military equipment but no arms capable of delivering nuclear weapons.

The United States now has 10,000 military men stationed at Spanish air bases outside Madrid, Zaragoza and Moron and at the Rota navy base near Gibraltar. The navy base is used to service U.S. nuclear submarines and for Mediterranean communications.

Agreement on a treaty would be seen as a sign of U.S. confidence in the new regime of King Juan Carlos after nearly 40 years of dictatorial rule and isolation from Europe by Gen. Francisco Franco, who died in November.

Previous U.S.-Spanish military cooperation was based on executive agreements. Spain has been suggesting for some time it would prefer the increased status of a treaty. The death of Franco and the rise in importance of Spain's Mediterranean defense role spurred Madrid to insist on recognition by the U.S. Congress instead of a president's signature, U.S. sources said.

U.S. sources described the treaty as a defense partnership and said it was expected to be signed Saturday by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during a 24-hour stopover in Madrid on his way home from nuclear weapons negotiations in Moscow.

They said it calls on the U.S. Congress and the Spanish parliament respectively to consider any attack by a third party on the other country but does not require a military response.

There is a moral responsibility but not a legal one, sources said.

Spanish Foreign Minister Jose Maria Arellaza was to brief Spain's National Defense Council and the Foreign Relations Committee of parliament ahead of Kissinger's arrival.

Negotiations for a treaty reflected U.S. concern over the loss of U.S. bases in Turkey and Greece's refusal to service NATO ships.

burglary of the Western Auto Store, 1715 West Broadway.

Police said Anthony J. Quattrochi, also known as Anthony J. Thompson, 19, and Thomas J. McGrath, 19, both of 1322 East Seventh, were arrested inside the building after police discovered a broken window on a rear overhead door about 1 a.m. Wednesday.

Police arrested Ronald Lee Jones, 21, 2117 East Broadway, about three hours later on suspicion of breaking and entering. Magistrate Court Judge Hazel Palmer set their preliminary hearings for Feb. 10. Jones is free on $5,000 bond while McGrath and Quattrochi remain in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond each.

Charges of stealing over $50 were filed Thursday morning against Marvin Spruell, 18, 418 West Saline, and Euel Thomas Buckner, 18, 802 North Osage. They were arraigned on those charges Thursday afternoon.

They were arrested about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday after they allegedly took a jacket, and a knit sweater from the Factory Outlet Store, 1709 West Broadway.

Doris Anderson told police three men and three women entered the store Tuesday afternoon and were seen leaving with the jacket, six shirts and the sweater under their clothes.

Mrs. Anderson, store owner, said she confronted the three women and was able to get the shirts back, but she was afraid to confront the three men. Spruell and Buckner were arrested on information furnished by a store employee.

Spruell remained in the county jail Thursday night in lieu of bond and Buckner was released late Thursday afternoon on bond.

Officials favor replacing firemen

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The city would dismiss all firemen who honored another strike by their union, the Kansas City Star quoted city officials as saying in a copyright story Thursday.

Quoting top administrators who asked not to be identified, the newspaper said city plans for any strike that might be called by the firefighters union include total replacement of the strikers. The Star said the sources wanted to remain anonymous because of the delicate nature of the situation.

As recently as last fall the contribution was still in the news. Former Republican Rep. Louis Wyman's involvement with the contribution was regarded as one factor in his defeat for a New Hampshire Senate seat in a special election.

The Watergate special prosecutor's office investigated Wyman's involvement. He denied any wrongdoing and no indictments were issued.

The Senate Watergate committee's report dealt with various cases of so-called selling of ambassadorships by the Nixon administration, but the panel said it did not investigate the Farkas matter at the request of the special prosecutor.

The Luxembourg post is traditionally regarded as a political reward.
